(Repeat Chorus)

In the light of your smile the gleam of the sunlight became weaker.

Your youth is radiant in the glory of your spoken word.

As soon as I see you in the evening, you rob
me of my senses.

Come, come, come to me.

In the light of your smile the sun and her rays
expire.

My youth burnt in me from the beauty of your voice.

In vain you mock me. The secret of your eyes

has revealed itself to me and told me that I am your loved one.

Oh, when I see you in the evening, and my sighing is nourishment to you.

Come, come, come to me.
