Hey you, girl, my darling, how did you learn to lay down alone and to stand up alone. Me, unlucky one, I can't do that. How many candles I light, still I don't see clear in the night. I can burn a whole load of wood, still I can't get warm in the night. I shed a glass full of tears in the night and still I cannot cry enough. I drink a barrel of wine in the night and still I am thirsty, thirsty for you.
